

AI and digital technologies are transforming how we understand, plan, and live in cities. This two-day event will explore urban informality, mobility, biodiversity, and heat through research conducted at the MIT Senseable City Lab, and how these themes intersect the Biennale Architettura works. The event will foster dialogue among MIT students and researchers, industry, city leaders, and academics from institutions worldwide.