About Open Atelier - a Creative Europe project

The Open Atelier project is an interdisciplinary and cross-sectoral network of four European House Museums, one creative performance organization and one university which aims at building new innovative formats for active audience participation and interaction with cultural heritage within European House Museums by creating new ways to actively involve audiences in the exploration, interpretation, mediation, and presentation of cultural heritage and of its uses in the contemporary world.

It is our beliefs that shared cultural heritage is a tool to promote intercultural understanding and create relations between identities, representations, and performances of history, this by connecting higher educational institutions with cultural institutions and companies to working an interdisciplinary, new, and innovative way.

On the Open Atelier Biennale Sessions, we'll present to you the winners of the Open Atelier Competition and the amazing results of what might happen when House Museums dare to set our common European cultural heritage free to be looked at, interpreted and manipulated by the next generation.
